ITALIAN RELIEF FUND

The appalling disaster that has befallen the people of Southern Italy and the unparalleled extent of the calamity call upon the people of the Nation for immediate contributions of money.

At the request of the Governor of the State, the Selectmen, acting as an Executive Committee, call upon the citizens of Arlington to contribute money for the relief of the stricken sufferers.

John A. Easton, at the 1st National Bank, Arlington, Mass., has been appointed Treasurer of the Italian Relief Fund, to whom all money contributions should be sent.

It is hoped Arlington will respond as liberally as it has in the past in such cases.

NEW SHORT STORIES

Silenced the Crow.

Mrs. Isaac L. Rice, the brilliant leader of the anti-noise crusade, has canned noises, as she quaintly calls them, whenever to illustrate her eloquent addresses. Mrs. Rice, that is to say, demonstrates with actual phonographic records the hideous street din of New York.

Discussing the other day animal noises—the night noise of prowling cats, the sunrise noise of roosters kept in alleys—Mrs. Rice said:

"An anti-noise man got the better of an inconsiderate Socialist last month. It is a queer story."

"The anti-noise man, a nervous journalist, lived in a Brooklyn flat, and the Socialist, his landlord, lived below him. The Socialist kept a talking crow—you know crows talk if their tongues are split—and this bird from its cage on the balcony roared all day long:

"Hurrah for Debs! Hurrah for Debs!"

"All through the presidential campaign the journalist got no sleep on account of the crow's socialistic cheers. Though no great foe to socialism, he came to loathe the very thought of Debs."

"He tried to buy the crow, offering as much as $25 for it. In vain. He besought its owner to keep it indoors."

"No, sirree!" exclaimed the Socialist. In vain. This unsocial Socialist was to proud of his crow to curtail a moment of its noisy Debs enthusiasm.

"The journalist was afraid to kill or steal the crow lest the owner, discovering his guilt, turn him out of the flathouse. He did, however, a wily thing."

"He went to a pet stock dealer, bought a crow that couldn't say a word and the next day, watching his chance, substituted the dumb bird for the loquacious one."

"The journalist met the Socialist in a clear store the other day."

"Don't you ever regret," he said, "that you refused my liberal offer for your talking crow?"

"No, sirree!" exclaimed the Socialist warmly. "I value that bird more than ever now. Why, man, would you believe it, ever since the defeat of Eugene V. Debs the crow hasn't opened his lips."—New York Times.

Crushed Hopes.

"Times are changed," said Mark Twain, speaking of Washington. "I doubt if nowadays a man of Washington's unswerving integrity would be able to get on."

"A rich lawyer after dinner the other night went into his den for a smoke. He took down from his pipe rack a superb meerschaum, a birthday present from his wife; but, alas, as he started to fill the pipe it came apart in his hands. The bowl had been broken in two and then carelessly stuck together."

"With loud growls of rage the lawyer rushed from his den and demanded to know who had broken his new meerschaum. His only son, a boy of eleven, spoke up bravely."

"Father," he said, "I cannot tell a lie. I did it."

"The lawyer praised the lad's Washingtonian veracity, but that night on his pillow he groaned and went on terribly about the incident."

"Heaven help me," he said. "It had been my life's dearest wish to rear up my son to my own profession, but now—alas—alas!"

Shy on Promises.

Among the interesting anecdotes illustrative of Mr. Cleveland's refusal to give pledges of any sort is that which describes an incident of the campaign of 1892 and is printed in the New York Evening Post. A literary friend of Mr. Cleveland brought together, as if by chance, the Democratic nominee and a prominent Irish-American contractor who was supposed to have much influence with the coveted Irish vote.

The interview was so managed that the two men were left alone in the literary man's library for an hour. At the end of that time they were discovered swapping stories with each other like old friends.

"Well," asked the host of the contractor after Mr. Cleveland had left, "what do you think of him?"

"Sure," replied the contractor, beaming all over, "he's the greatest man I ever saw. He's a fine man, a grand man. He wouldn't promise to do anything I asked him."

GAVE THE ANSWER.

A Soldier Who Followed the Orders of General Jackson.

Illustrative of the exasperating ease with which an occasion may "come home to roost" is this story from "A Soldier's Letters to a Friend." On a day in June, 1862, in the early part of the civil war General Hood of the Texas brigade halted each regiment in turn and gave his orders. To the Fourth he said:

"Soldiers of the Fourth, I know as little of your destination as you do. If, however, any of you learn or suspect it, keep it a secret. To every one who asks questions answer, 'I don't know.' We are now under the orders of General Jackson, and I repeat them to you."

General Jackson also gave strict orders against foraging, but apples were plentiful, and it was contrary to nature for hungry soldiers not to eat them, and so it came about that on the march to Staunton General Jackson came upon a Texan sitting on the limb of an apple tree busily engaged in filling his haversack with the choicest fruit.

The general reined in his old sorrel horse and in his customary curt tone asked:

"What are you doing in that tree, sir?"

"I don't know," replied the Texan.

"What command do you belong to?"

"I don't know."

"Is your command ahead of you or behind you?"

"I don't know."

Thus it went on, "I don't know" given as answer to every question. Finally Jackson asked sternly:

"Why do you give me that answer to every question?"

"Cause them's the orders our general gin us this mornin', an' he tole us he got 'em that er way straight from ole Jackson," replied the man in the tree.

Disgusted with a too literal obedience to his own commands, but yet not caring to argue the point, General Jackson rode on.

A ONE NIGHT CONVERT.

Incident in the Temperance Career of Father Mathew.

In 1843, when Father Mathew was crusading for total abstinence in London, he created no small amusement for a large party at the hospitable mansion of an Irish nobleman by his attempts, partly playful, but also partly serious, to make a convert of Lord Brougham, who resisted good humorously, but resolutely, the efforts of his zealous neighbor. The incident is related by Katharine Tynan in her biography of Father Mathew.

"I drink very little wine," said Brougham, "only half a glass at luncheon and two half glasses at dinner. And, though my medical adviser told me I should increase the quantity, I refused to do so."

"He was wrong, my lord, for advising you to increase the quantity, and you were wrong in taking the small quantity you do," said Father Mathew, "but I have my hopes of you."

And so, after a pleasant resistance on the part of the learned lord, Father Mathew invested his lordship with the silver medal and ribbon, the insignia and collar of the "new order of the Bath."

"Then I will keep it," said Brougham, "and take it to the house, where I shall be sure to meet old Lord—the worse for liquor, and I will put it on him."

The announcement of this intention was received with much laughter, for the noble lord referred to was notorious for his potations.

Lord Brougham was as good as his word, for on meeting the veteran peer he said, "Lord—, I have a present from Father Mathew for you," and passed the ribbon rapidly over his neck.

"Then I tell you what it is, Brougham. I will keep sober for this night," was the peer's unexpected response. And he kept this vow, to the amazement of his friends.

The Fare.

This is how a driver of the prison van, known as Black Maria, distinguished himself. A would be wit on the causeway hailed him:

"Got any room inside, Robert?"

"There's room for one," replied the driver. "We keep it for you."

Not entirely disconcerted, the wit made another shot.

"What's your fare?" he asked.

The answer entirely extinguished him.

"Bread and water—same as you had before!"—Pearson's Weekly.

The Great Circus.

The famous Coliseum in old Rome, massive as it was, was a mere toy in comparison with the great circus, which filled the valley between the Palatine and the Aventine hills. The Coliseum is said to have been able to seat 80,000 people, while the seating capacity of the great circus was, at different periods, 150,000, 250,000 and, lastly, 380,000 spectators. The great circus was probably the most stupendous building ever erected for public spectacles.—New York American.

Tired Traveler (to barber)—Spending the night in a sleeping car doesn't improve one's beauty, does it? Barber—I don't know what you looked like when you started, but I guess you're right.—Harper's Bazar.

Reasonable Enough.

"What's your objection to the farm, mister?"

"The land appears to be sunken."

"But that's owing to the heavy crops!"—Washington Herald.

FLOWERS OF SPEECH.

An Englishman's Address at a Ladies' Seminary in Siam.

The influential Englishman in Siam flattered himself that he had a very decent knowledge of the language and was ready to do great things. He had already ordered coffee from his hotel waiter with success and asked the boy to bring up his boots.

Now, influential Englishmen in Siam are not as common as cockroaches, and that afternoon the distinguished visitor was requested by a friend to deliver an address on "England" at the only ladies' seminary in the country. Confidently he accepted.

He began famously. Every one applauded and smiled. But gradually as he proceeded he noticed consternation overspreading the countenances of his listeners.

"What's the trouble?" he whispered in English anxiously to his friend on the platform.

"Trouble!" exclaimed the friend hotly. "Why, the trouble is what you are saying."

"But," protested the speaker, "I am saying, 'I am delighted to see so many young ladies rising to intellectual heights, with fine brains and large appreciation.'"

"Oh, no, you're not," corrected the friend. "You're saying, 'I am pleased to see so many small boned creatures growing large and fat, with big noses and huge feet.'"—London Tit-Bits.

WHEN YOU WEEP.

The Way That Tears Act Upon the Human Organism.

Professor Waynbaum, M. D., of Paris publishes some queer facts regarding the nature and purpose of tears, coming to the conclusion that tears act upon the human organism "like chloroform, ether or alcohol."

"When a human being gives way to sorrow," says Dr. Waynbaum, "the blood pressure in the brain decreases. The tear helps in this process, which benumbs the brain for the time being, causing passiveness of the soul almost approaching indifference."

"Tears are blood, changing color by their passage through the lacrimal glands. One can drown his sorrow in tears as one can numb his senses by the use of alcohol or drugs. When a person cries the facial muscles contract, and the appearance of the face changes, which action facilitates the white blood letting, driving the blood particles into the lacrimal gland, from which they issue in the shape of tears."

"Children whose nervous system is particularly tender derive great benefit from crying occasionally. The act of crying relieves their brains. The same may be said with respect to women."

The professor likewise explains why laughter sometimes produces tears, but the explanation is too technical for reproduction.

The Only Safe Way.

"No, I can't stay any longer," he said, with determination.

"What difference does an hour or so make now?" asked a member of the party. "Your wife will be in bed and asleep, and if she wakes up she won't know what time it is."

"Quite right, quite right," he returned. "I can fool my wife almost any time as long as I get home before breakfast. Why, I've gone home when the sun was up, kept the blinds shut, lit the gas and made her think that it was a little after 12. But, gentlemen, I can't fool the baby. I can make the room as dark as I please, but it won't make the baby sleep a minute later than usual, and when she wakes up hungry it comes pretty close to being morning, and my wife knows it. Gentlemen," he added as he bowed himself out, "I make it a rule to get home before the baby wakes. It's the only safe way."

A Dog Story.

At a farmhouse at which we have been staying a terrier, Rough, shares always his master's first breakfast, the bread and cream accompanying a cup of tea. Three corners he breaks off and gives to Rough, who eats the first two. Off the third he licks the cream, then carries the crust to a hen who each morning comes across the field where the fowls are kept and at the gate awaits her friend's arrival. Should others of the hens appear, Rough "barks them off" while his favorite devours her portion.—London Spectator.

A Tremendous Task.

"So you are going to study law?"

"Yes."

"Going to make a specialty of criminal law?"

"No."

"Corporation law?"

"No. Both are too easy. What I want is to be accurately and reliably informed as to what months in the year and days in the week it is permitted to shoot certain game in the various sections of the country."—Washington Star.

A Patron of Art.

"So you enjoy reading all the extravagant praise that is printed about that opera singer?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox. "It kind of helps me to feel that maybe those tickets were worth what I paid for 'em."—Washington Star.

Poor Jones!

Missionary—Can you give me any information about Deacon Jones, who labored among your people three years ago? Cannibal—Well, the last I heard about him he had gone into consumption.—Judge.

The Mirrors.

When winter donned her diamond crown
One frosty morning bright
And put her ermine mantle on
Of soft and fleecy white
She swept a frozen tear or two
And sighed, "If I could see
My beautiful reflection, lo,
How happy I would be!"

The north wind heard her wailing words
And roared, "Cheer up, my lass,
And you shall soon behold yourself
In many a looking glass."
He breathed upon the ponds and pools,
The rivers and the brooks,
And winter finds a mirror now
Wherever way she looks.

Cupid in the Blizzard.

By CECILY ALLEN

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

The Silver-Hess wedding, the absent-mindedness of Mrs. Graves and the unprecedented November blizzard worked together for the good of Roland Baxter.

The Silver-Hess wedding was scheduled for Denver. The absent-minded Mrs. Graves and the relentless blizzard met in Chicago.

Polly Hess had recently moved to Chicago, and when her brother's fiancée wrote that the wedding would occur directly before Thanksgiving day and would she please have a ducky frock of leaf green chiffon cloth to wear as maid of honor Polly instantly decided that Chicago was a very big city and one in which a new dressmaker must be sought with discretion.

Upon her musings entered Mrs. Graves, whose faculty for switching from one topic of conversation to another with lightning rapidity was as amusing to her friends as it was bewildering to new acquaintances. Said Mrs. Graves:

"Of course I can help you out. My friend, Mrs. Baxter—you never did see such clothes. By the way, didn't Mrs. Daily look like a frump at the club meeting Thursday? Now, Mrs. Baxter, my dear, did you ever hear worse violin music than we had on that program? Her address—oh, yes—672 Boulevard. Dear child, however did you train your lashes to curl like that?"

An hour later Roland Baxter, looking into the wonderful violet eyes beneath those same curling lashes, immediately decided that eyes, lashes and the owner thereof had dropped straight from heaven.

The Baxter maid was standing in the private hallway of the Baxter apartment explaining to Polly Hess that Mrs. Baxter was not yet up. Would Miss Hess call later in the day? Mrs. Baxter expected to be home all afternoon.

And at this instant the eldest scion of the house of Baxter added earnestly: "You'll surely find her here about 4. Do come back. She would be sorry to miss you."

Then by exerting all his will power he managed to stand perfectly still and watch the violet eyed angel take her departure.

Polly Hess walked through the sharp November air, feeling oddly bewildered.

"It must have been the place, and her name is Baxter, but I'm afraid her prices are way beyond me. She must be dreadfully smart, and I suppose she has to go out late to theaters and things to see the styles, but she ought to be up by 10 o'clock. Maybe she has a good forewoman. Anyhow, I am coming back. Dear me, it must be lovely to be able to buy frocks without figuring on the rent the dressmaker makes you help to pay."

At 3:50 Roland Baxter strolled into his mother's drawing room. The tea things were arranged on a convenient table, but the afternoon lowered, and guests would probably be few. Mrs. Baxter closed her magazine.

"Anything wrong at the office, Roland?" she inquired.

"No. Just thought I'd knock off. It's a hideous afternoon downtown, and pretty women around a tea table can make you forget the worst weather."

His astute mother was for once nonplused. Roland a willing sacrifice on the altar of her afternoon tea table! And then the maid announced Miss Hess.

"Oh, dear!" mourned Mrs. Baxter as she laid down her magazine. "I wonder what charity she represents."

Polly Hess paused, bewildered, in the doorway. Then, with a laugh tinged with dismay and just a little hysteria, she cried:

"Oh, now I know there is something wrong. Please, please forgive me. I've made such a dreadful mistake."

Mrs. Baxter stood midway between her chair and her flushed guest.

"Perhaps if you would explain!"

"Yes, do let me explain. I was looking for a dressmaker, and Mrs. Graves—"

"Mrs. Graves! Do not say another word. I can say it for you. Mrs. Graves admired a new frock I was showing her yesterday. She asked me for the address of my dressmaker. You asked her about a dressmaker, and she gave you my address when she thought she was giving you the dressmaker's. That's just like her."

The two women laughed in concert and then suddenly paused. Both had caught the rumble of masculine laughter and realized that Roland had risen and was standing, altogether expectant in attitude and expression.

"My son, Miss— Do tell me your name and stop for a cup of tea," murmured Mrs. Baxter, eager to relieve the girl's embarrassment. "Miss Hess? My son, Roland, light the alcohol stove and ring for some of that strawberry jam you love."

Mrs. Baxter meant only to undo the mischief wrought by her voluble and inaccurate friend, but in a few minutes she was sincerely interested in her charming if unexpected guest.

They had mutual friends in Denver, and Polly's great-grandfather and Mrs. Baxter's great-uncle had fought in the same regiment during the war of 1812.

So it happened that Roland Baxter was just wondering whether the ambrosia of the gods and strawberry jam sandwiches were interchangeable terms when somewhere far off a soft chime struck five times.

With the exquisite flush which was one of her best points Polly sprang to her feet.

"You've been so perfectly charming, Mrs. Baxter, that I've lost all track of time, and now it must be quite dark."

Mrs. Baxter was bending her head in listening attitude.

"Roland, that sounds like sleet. It must be storming."

Young Baxter hastened to the window and uttered an exclamation of dismay.

"The worst ever. You can't think of going out in it, Miss Hess."

"Oh, but I must! Please telephone for a cab. Mother will be so anxious." Baxter rang up the nearest cab station.

"What's that? You wouldn't send a horse out in this storm? Are you running an animal society or a transportation line?"

Brief silence, then a prolonged whistle, and the receiver was hung up with decision.

"No venturing out for you, Miss Hess," he remarked, with unconcealed satisfaction. "It's a blizzard, the sort we usually get in February, and it's been tying up the town while we've been drinking tea."

"Oh, but I must. Mother will worry. Whatever shall I do?"

Polly's cheeks were pale now, and her dimples had faded.

"Do, my dear? Why, we will telephone your mother before the wires are down," interrupted Mrs. Baxter. "I trust your grocer and butcher beat the blizzard, and if you will be my guest until the storm is over—"

Impulsive Polly sprang forward and clasped the hand of her hostess.

"You are so splendid. I wish I could say what I feel!"—And then, catching the light of a pair of hazel eyes watching her above the telephone book, she said "Oh!" very suddenly and turned her face the other way.

It was 11. The couple from the floor below who had come up for a game of whist had taken their departure. Mrs. Baxter was making the rounds of her apartment to be sure that all was fast against the storm, which still raged furiously. Polly and Roland stood in the round bay window looking down the storm-blocked boulevard.

"What a cruel thing a big storm is!" said Polly.

"Not this storm. I think it is the finest old blizzard that ever blizzed." He tried hard to look into her eyes.

"If I could just tell you what this blizzard means to me!"

He had been drawing her toward him with his glance, but now she drew back and summoned all her dimples.

"Please, please, not now, not here. It's your house, you see, and I'd have to be polite."

"Don't you want to be polite?" urged Roland Baxter significantly.

"I don't know. Oh, you are not playing fair. It's so soon!"

"Nothing of the sort," interrupted Roland recklessly. "It happened at 10 o'clock this morning. I remember the chimes ringing just as I looked into your eyes for the first time."

And again Polly Hess said "Oh!" which, oddly enough, seemed to satisfy her companion, for he dropped the heavy curtains, blotting out all sight of the raging elements, and drew her back into the circle of crimson shaded lamplight.

Cannibal Cows.

"Now, children," said the pretty teacher, "I want you all to write a composition on the cow. You know what a cow is. You know that a cow gives us all the milk we drink. Now, write me something original about the cow as you know her, nothing commonplace." It would take several pages to print the results, but there is room for at least one composition by a girl of seven:

"A cow is a quadruped having four legs and four feet. She gives milk and sometimes has horns, but not always. The cow's baby is called a calf and sometimes bossy. When a cow talks she lows. A cow with horns can hook, but a cow without horns is helpless. A cow is a carnivorous animal when she has a chance, but she ordinarily eats grass, if there is any. A cow is a cannibal if you let her alone, for she will eat her own kind."

The horrified teacher exclaimed: "Sally May, where on earth did you get the idea, the ridiculous idea, that a cow is carnivorous and a cannibal? You meant to say that a cow is herbivorous or graminivorous."

"No, teacher. I read it in the Holy Bible. Don't you remember there were seven fine fat cows feeding near a brook and seven lean and hungry cows came and ate them up? See Genesis xii, 4."

Teacher reserved decision.—New York Press.

What Generosity Means.

"Many people get the credit of being generous who never felt a single generous impulse in their lives," says a close student of human nature.

"Their generosity, so called, has consisted simply in formal, cold, grudging almsgiving, carried out at the call of duty and unaccompanied by any spontaneous burst of feeling or sympathy."

"The highest generosity is full of strong, unhesitating self effacement and always inspires, except in debased natures, feelings of gratitude and affection. Almsgiving is one of the least of its attributes. It more often takes the form of helpfulness, sympathy and understanding. It gives forth compassion and encouragement of a kind which is far beyond money value."

"The secret of generosity is unselfishness, and the way to acquire it is to cultivate universal love and sympathy."—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Unions and Unionism.

More than a half century ago wage earners in the United States began forming unions patterned on the English model, without reference to the wide difference even then existing between workmen of the same class in the two sections. This has been the main source of friction between men who work with their hands and those giving them employment. The following article is one of several appearing in the Sunday Globe of Jan. 3, and without comment we offer it to the serious attention of our readers:—

The effect of unions upon labor has been primarily to reduce and ultimately to destroy efficiency. Some positive evidence is required to substantiate this statement. In order to do this, it is necessary to eliminate much of what has been said and written about the aims, objects and ideals of unionism, by its paid advocates seeking notoriety and gain; also that group of individuals depending for knowledge upon the product of the many adulterated food factories of printer's ink, but whose actual experience is confined to a ten-by-eight room, with a desk, chair and writing material, and who—if decorated with a college label, which is assumed to imply infallible knowledge on all subjects—with few exceptions, only add to the confusion and to the obscuring of the real facts about unionism.

Unionism has no ideal about the material. It is the body with the soul petrified. It has but one object, one aim, and that is to increase wages, shorten hours, and better its own material condition. This appears to be a laudable object on its face. Analyzed, it means to get more, do less and become more prosperous. How? By holding up every other member of the community and forcing him to get less, do more and become less prosperous, so that the members of the union may attain their object and better their conditions. Union sympathizers may well give this thought some consideration, when they object to the increase of living expenses.

If unionism sought to attain its ends by increased skill and efficiency, no objection would, or could, be made against it. But everyone of its principles and methods is opposed to efficiency and encourages inefficiency. It advocates first, limitation of output; second, restriction of the use of tools and machinery; third, the restriction of apprentices; fourth, collective bargaining.

Limitation of output means limiting development of a man's power; it strangles individuality. If the saying, "Practice makes perfect," is true, then the limitation of practice means a limitation of efficiency.

Restriction of the use of tools and machinery is a step backward and is a blow at efficiency. It discourages invention and prevents progress by stifling inventive genius. It stops thought. The mind is left to rust into inefficiency.

Restriction of apprentices, a crime against the American boy, is the most dastardly method adopted by trade unions to prevent efficiency. Possible competition from new workers minimized to the lowest point breeds inefficiency.

Collective bargaining—the euphemistic title for the Italian padrone system—is the trump card of inefficiency played by unions. The process of bargaining and treating human beings like automata, giving equal reward to the efficient and the inefficient, levels efficiency to the lowest point of inefficiency. Equal pay for unequal service discourages efficiency and puts a premium on inefficiency.

Briefly stated, the strength, power and cornerstone of the union structure is inefficiency. It is the bond which holds unionism together, the protective tariff exacted from the public to keep the unions in flourishing condition. Efficient labor needs no protection—it can make its own price; inefficient labor needs protection. Inefficiency makes clutch upon men, whose services are paid with the unearned wage extorted from the public through the employer. Unionism destroys individuality and the competitive spirit which urges men to strive to reach the top, retards growth, offers no goal, discourages effort, says to its members, "Thus far shalt thou go and no farther," teaches the doctrine of "Get all you can and do as little as possible." It tends toward monopoly, and monopoly breeds inefficiency.

With a balance of $397,267 on hand, the relief corporation which had charge of the distribution of the fund donated to San Francisco at the time of the fire of 1906, turned this money over to the various charitable organizations and went out of existence the first of the year. During its existence the corporation distributed $9,553,140. Of the vast sum of subscription money received every cent is accounted for, and but $608.95 is on the books of the relief corporation without the donors' names. The huge sum was distributed at an expense of 2.03 per cent. The relief society has provided and assisted in providing for about 800 homes in San Francisco, or shelter for about 30,000 persons, at a cost of $1,900,000, which is of a permanent character and ranges from refugee cottages to North Beach flats constructed with the building bonus money. The relief home for the aged and infirm, built at a cost of $374,667 and presented to the city, is of a permanent character. Besides this, large contributions by the society to many hospitals and other charities have materially aided in their rehabilitation.

The Legislature Convenes.

On Wednesday the General Court assembled at the State House and with less of friction or excitement than usual, began the session of 1909, though the President of the Senate and Speaker of the House are new men. No open contests for these places expedited business and announcement was made of heads of important committees early in the day. Hon. J. Howell Crosby of Arlington secured the enviable place of chairman of the Senate Committee on Metropolitan Affairs. The Transcript says in regard to this appointment: "It is fair and wise to have for chairman of Metropolitan Affairs, first of all, a man of absolute integrity and of recognized legislative experience and ability. Crosby fills the bill in every particular. He served three years in the House and was a leading member of the most important committee on Ways and Means. It also goes without saying that it is best to have as chairman a man who is not directly affected by Boston city affairs." Chairmanship of Legal Affairs goes to Hon. John L. Harvey of Waltham, who represents the district of which Lexington is a part. The Speaker has made up one of the strongest committees on railroads that it was possible for him to make. Edwin A. Bayley of Lexington, representing the 19th Middlesex Dist., of which his town and Arlington is composed, is expected to show himself to be one of the strongest men among the new members.

The chaplains,—Horton in the Senate, Waldron for the House,—are retained in office, comrade Remington is Sergeant-at-Arms, and the minor offices are filled by those who for several years have acted in these capacities.

On Thursday Gov. Draper was inaugurated and delivered his message, which will be found on pages six and seven, on the inside of the paper.

The spring-like weather the first of the week took sudden flight on Wednesday evening, when there was a decided change, while Thursday proved one of the coldest of the season.

The Union Square Presbyterian church on Warren avenue leading from Union Square, Somerville, is the only Presbyterian church in this section. The Sunday services are held at 10.30 a. m. and 7.30 p. m., and to these a very cordial invitation is extended to all who have no church home. Especially those nurtured in the Presbyterian faith are earnestly requested to find a church home here. The service is simple and earnest, while the courteous and kindly welcome aids the stranger in worship and in feeling at home.

The U. S. War Department has issued a tentative order to the Boston & Maine R. R., demanding the rebuilding of the five drawbridges over the Charles river, and a hearing is to be held Jan. 21. The plan proposed is to raise the bridges to twenty-three feet above high tide, water mark, and to accomplish this steel and granite will have to be used. It would seem that raising the tracks as proposed and making the Boston station on this level, as in N. Y. and Philadelphia, the way might open for solving the grade crossing problem in the northern section of the Metropolitan District. The enterprise is one of gigantic proportions, but is in no way outside of possibilities.

The year 1908 witnessed a series of exceedingly disastrous forest fires, causing a total loss of between fifty and one hundred million dollars. Every part of the country has suffered from forest fires, with the probable exception of some parts of the South, where climatic conditions have not been favorable for the spread of the flames. In a recent statement, Mr. Gifford Pinchot, chief of the United States forest service, said: "In many ways the year's forest fires have been the worst I have ever known. The whole northern half of the country has been attacked, and the losses which have been caused represent a serious drain on our timber supply."—Suburban Life.

It is reported that the committee appointed to consider that portion of the President's message relating to secret service, will make a unanimous report that it "lie on the table." There is no precedent for such action, so making this precedent the committee intends administering a rebuke. We trust the President will not be crushed by this contemptuous action.

The opening articles of the notable series, "Stories of a Great Nation," to appear in the National Magazine for 1909, have awakened widespread interest. The January issue contains one of the most remarkable sketches of "The Supreme Court of the United States," written by ex-Justice Henry B. Brown. "The Secrets of the Secret Service" are told by Chief John Wilkie, who has made a remarkable record in this department. This article happens to be one of most timely interest, in view of the controversy between the President and Congress over a paragraph in his message. The "Making of Uncle Sam's Money" is a subject that interests every man, woman and child in the country, and the story is told in a graphic, interesting way, with illustrations, by the chief of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. "The National Health" treated in an article by Surgeon-General Walter Wyman, and is thoroughly interesting and up-to-date. The articles are in every way practical, comprehensive and cohesive stories of our great nation, and will not only whet the appetites of all students of civics and economics in school or college, but will be of interest to each individual of the eighty millions of people who are stockholders in this corporation known as "The United States of America."

Joint Installation.

Grand Army Hall was filled to more than its seating capacity, last Wednesday evening, when the officers of Francis Gould Corps No. 43, W. R. C., and Charles V. Marsh Camp 45 to serve during the year 1909, were installed in the presence of friends in other organizations and special guests. Among these and more prominent than any others were officers and members of Francis Gould Post 36, G. A. R., because this organization was so largely represented. After the usual tedious wait the formalities were introduced, Commander Sebolt speaking a few words of welcome and then turning control of the program over to Mrs. Carolyn R. Morse, First of Corps 43. Post 36 was formally received, the installing officer was introduced in similar form and then Mrs. Morse surrendered the gavel to Mrs. Lucie Stuart Wadsworth, Dept. President W. R. C., who was to install the officers, and she had as her assistant Mrs. Hattie M. Tuttle, who is Dept. Secretary. Mrs. Wadsworth is certainly a model installing officer, being letter perfect in the ritual of good presence and a voice clear and penetrating, but always well modulated. The consequence was a ceremony without jar, and interesting to the last degree. The following is a list of officers installed:

President,—Carolyn R. Morse.
Senior Vice-President,—Etta M. Stevens.
Junior Vice-President,—Sarah Whittier.
Secretary,—Lucetta X. Floyd.
Treasurer,—Nellie M. Farmer.
Chaplain,—Mary Willard.
Conductor,—Catherine Finley.
Guard,—Henrietta Peppard.
Asst. Conductor,—Nellie McLanathan.
Guard,—Julia Axman.
Patriotic Instructor,—Mary L. Durgin.
Press Representative,—Margaret Torrey.
Color Bearer,—Etta Mauger, Annie Hartwell, Grace Whittier, Annie L. Kaubek.

At the conclusion, Mrs. Morse presented to the installing officer a stylographic pen and to Mrs. Tuttle a picture, in token of appreciation of their kindness in serving Corps 43 on this occasion, and in what was said it is evident Mrs. Morse is much thought of at headquarters. In her turn Mrs. Morse received at the hands of Mrs. Nellie M. Farmer, as representing almost the entire membership of Corps 43, a handsome gold Past President's badge in a suitable case, and from the Corps also a nice silk flag. Mrs. Floyd, who has served as secretary to Mrs. Morse, was given a bunch of pinks, in token of appreciation.

These pleasant features disposed of, the ladies gave way to the young men, and the officers of Camp 45 were installed by Col. Wm. A. Stevens, who has few equals and no superiors in any line of work connected with the Sons of Veterans. He concluded his service by presenting to Commander Sebolt a gold Past Commander's badge, which the recipient accepted with brief but appreciative words. The following is the full roster:

Commander,—O. J. Sebolt.
S. V. Com.—Harvey H. Bacon.
J. V. Com.—Chas. B. Hurley.
Camp Council,—M. J. Bacon, J. J. Hurley, I. W. Floyd.

Delegates,—Chas. B. Hurley, I. W. Floyd.

Alternates,—W. L. Coulter, E. H. Griffin.

STAFF APPOINTMENTS.

Chaplain,—M. J. Bacon.

Secretary,—Waldo A. Stevens.

Treasurer,—William A. Stevens.

Patriotic Instructor,—I. W. Floyd.

Guard,—Walter L. Coulter.

Color Bearer,—J. J. Hurley.

Principal Musician,—Gerald Murray.

Inner Guard,—Ernest H. Griffin.

Outer Guard,—Charles O. Cook.

The hour was now so late that the usual speech making was dispensed with and all marched to the banquet hall, where a tempting repast was spread on two long tables and served at small tables scattered about the room. Mrs. Farmer and Mrs. Thayer presided at the silver trays at either end of one of the long tables, their assistants being Mrs. Whitaker and Mrs. Record. Mrs. Urquhart and Mrs. W. S. Durgin seemed to have general oversight of this feature.

Theatre Notes.

The "Circus Girl" on account of its great popularity and success will run another week at the Castle Square. Don't miss seeing it.

The number of newcomers, all of the highest character, being introduced at Keith's Theatre in recent weeks, has been noticeable and the week of January 11th will be even more so. One of these is that elaborate spectacle, "The Naked Truth," given by Harry Davenport and Phyllis Rankin. This is one of the greatest novelties of its kind. For every he told the performers loose part of their clothing. The entire sketch is full of good musical numbers, beside the splendid comedy. There will also be a welcome for Ryan and Richfield, of "Mag Haggerty's Father's" fame. They stand in the front rank of comedians and while their old numbers are always received with favor, they invariably introduce something new. Smith and Campbell are also on this bill. They are the original side-walk conversationalists. Others are Lisle Leigh & Co. in a sketch; Kronka Brothers; Fred Sisman; the Brittons; El Cota; Kelly and Ashby and Ashby and Dykes, nearly all of which are new here, coming after a great success in New York.

"The old year, with lining of the new,
Filled with the wine of precious memories
The Golden was doth line the Silver as."

With the incoming of the year 1909, the question arises, "have we settled our bills?" The newspaper does are very apt to be forgotten and also to renew the subscription. While we know our editors are grateful for the patronage of many in our village, still it does not seem to us that the paper is supported as it should be. Many of our old subscribers have been removed by death, or gone to other places, and the new subscribers now do not seem to take interest in the atmosphere of our town sufficient to subscribe for the paper. Then, again, the editors receive but little (if any) advertising or job printing. As the reporter, while we realize that our weekly column may be weak, we know it could be much stronger if more would send us happenings suitable for publication. While we are not deaf or blind, yet our hearing and seeing faculties are not far-reaching enough to take in all the village. We have not written this in a dictatorial spirit, but simply to give suggestions.

Beacon Hill was a noted place this week.

Mrs. Lora Wolf is at Springfield for two weeks.

Our firemen responded to the fire alarm Tuesday morning.

Mr. Edwin Holbrook, of New York, recently called on friends here.

Mr. Fred Turner is recovering slowly from his long and severe illness.

Mr. Charles P. Nunn left this week for his yearly business trip abroad.

Skating and coasting are of a short duration so far this open winter.

Madam Tower and Miss Ellen M. Fowler left for their southern home this week.

Mr. Austin has a large stock and great variety of goods at his two stores, for the New Year.

Mrs. James Mitchell's many friends are glad that she is recovering from her recent illness.

The "Shirtwaist Dance" occurred Thursday night, at Village Hall, too late to give an account this week.

Some of our people were glad to receive a call from Mr. Bigelow Winship and daughter, of Schenectady, N. York.

The Neighborhood Circle met Thursday evening of this week, with the Misses Fiske. The subject was, "John Fiske's writings."

We are told that Mr. Charles Brown received a very hearty welcome from his southern friends at Durant, Miss., on his arrival there.

Mr. William B. Foster and family, also Mr. George Foster and wife, are nicely settled in their new double house on Plainfield street.

Miss Marion Fraser entertained her young friends on Thursday evening, Dec. 31, at her home, with games and music. Ice cream and cake were served.

Mr. James Phillips is progressing rapidly on the new house for Mr. Parsons, on Pleasant street. We are told it has been raised and boarded in, and the weather has been fine for their work.

There are two sides to the shield always. One side the heart-rendering picture of destruction and death in Italy; the other, the generosity and noble giving of so many so remote from the calamity.

Bailey Bros. did a good job in painting the Lockwood house, which is a great improvement, as is also Mrs. William Locke's home, on Mass. avenue. The past year has seen many estates improved by painting.

We wish to remind those in our midst, or elsewhere, who have not purchased tickets for the remaining four entertainments under the auspices of the Parish Social club, that they are anxious to sell more and above expenses, hope to aid the church, and uplift the community. The January one will be on Thursday evening, Jan. 21. It is an illustrated lecture on "Alaska of today," by Frederick M. Brooks, member of National Geographical Society, Washington, and a member of Twentieth Century Club.

Last Sunday evening Follen Guild had a vesper service, with splendid singing. The Rev. Mr. MacDonald spoke on these words, "Not to be ministered unto, but to minister," stating that these words were not spoken to any church or in relation to any organized body. "The church today, however, is the power which stands for the spirit of these words and is maintaining itself that it may teach the meaning of ministering. Jesus addressed himself to the human soul and so the church is teaching the need of service in all the departments of life—in the home, in business, everywhere. To be ministers to the needs of others, is to sit on the right hand and on the left in the favor of God."

Last Sunday morning, the service was particularly adapted to the children and appropriate for the New Year. Rev. H. A. MacDonald chose his text from Luke 1: 10, 12, and 14 verses, "What must we do for the New Year?" was the subject. "While we make new resolutions, let us remember that we are not new. It would be very foolish for a boy to resolve to build a bridge over Charles River, but he can wisely resolve to study at school and read concerning the construction of bridges and in time he may be able to superintend the building of them." Mr. MacDonald based his talk to the children on the story of Robert Browning's "Pippa Passes." Pippa is a poor child who works all the year in the silk mills of Italy, but has one day in the year as a holiday. She tries to imagine four of the happiest people, and first is the mill owner's wife, but she doesn't satisfy her idea; then comes the bride, who is filled with love; then the student living with his mother; and last, the priest, who is supposed to walk with God. Pippa passes by singing some refrain which her beautiful voice and words determine the action and destiny of men and women (unknown to her), showing the humblest of God's children can make the New Year a blessing to others.

"God is in His heaven,

Miss Gertrude Pierce's class of boys singing with Mrs. Austin's class of girls and it proved a very pleasant New Year's service.

—Ethel Hill, the granddaughter of Mrs. A. F. Hill of Lowell street, is recovering from a severe case of diphtheria.

—Mrs. A. F. Reimer and little daughter returned on Thursday from a three weeks' visit with her parents at East Bangor, Penn.

—The communion service at Park Avenue church will occur next Sabbath, in connection with the morning service. New members will be received at that time.

—Rev. A. F. Quimby, the father of Mr. C. M. Quimby of Hillside avenue, is recovering but slowly from pneumonia, with which he has been suffering for several weeks.

—There will be a supper served at 6.30 o'clock, at Park Avenue church, on next Tuesday, in connection with the annual meeting of the church. Members of the church and contributing members of the congregation will be welcome.

—Mrs. Fred Curry gave the members of her afternoon dancing class the privilege of entertaining one guest each at a party given on New Year's day in Crescent Hall. It made a company of seventy misses and masters, who danced to the piano playing by Miss Alice Kendall, from four to six o'clock. One of the features was a "favor German," where several different favors were given by the teacher, which made a pretty New Year's gift and an appropriate souvenir of the party. Several of the newest dances have been taught in this first quarter and the scholars showed by their dancing that most of them had been apt pupils. Mesdames Harold Ring and H. H. Stinson patronized the party, the former in a grey silk muslin over pink silk, and the latter in yellow tulle. The dancers were Masters Wilbur Emms, Warren Hisey, Americo Chaves, Haskel and Malcolm Reed. Of course there were many parents present to watch and admire the happy group. The second quarter of Mrs. Curry's class begins Jan. 22d and will conclude with a fancy dress party.

A somewhat unusual, but nevertheless most enjoyable feature was introduced at the Tennis Club's New Year party on last week Friday evening. During intermissions, Mr. Reimer, a violinist, gave a delightful rendering of several well known selections, accompanied at the piano by a young lady whose name we have been unable to ascertain. She was in perfect sympathy with the soloist and was one of the best accompanists we have ever listened to. A Miss Teigen gave soprano selections and responded to hearty encouragements. The hall never looked prettier than on this occasion, and much credit is due to Mrs. Oscar Schuetz and Miss Alice Kendall, who had this feature in charge. The following is a list of those present, as far as we were able to ascertain, as many were strangers to the reporter:

Mrs. Israel F. Hunt and two daughters, Misses Katharine and Elsie; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cutting and daughter Marjorie; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Schuetz, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Curry, Dr. Barbara and Dr. Arthur Ring, Mr. and Mrs. Truman Quimby, Mr. and Mrs. Norval Bacon and Mr. Alfred Bacon; Mr. and Mrs. John Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Currier, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dix, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Stinson, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Drouet, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Forbes, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Millett Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Roberts, Mrs. George Lloyd, Mrs. C. T. Parsons, Mrs. Harold Ring, Mrs. Farrington, Misses Shirley Robinson, Mayzie Simpson, Edith and Alice Kendall, Margaret Channing, Levia Dunton, Helene Taylor, Frances Wilson, Elizabeth Rich, Miss Burdett, Messrs. A. B. Root, H. H. Kendall, John Dobson, Clarence Gale, of Boston, Messrs. Frank Tyler, Herbert Converse, George Dwyer, Albert Curry, Clarence G. Parsons, Winfield Peckey.

The matrons received in handsome toilettes. Mrs. Parsons was in gray tulle, Mrs. Quimby in white lace, and Mrs. Allen in white embroidered batiste.

The special union services held in the three churches of this section during the past week, have been largely attended, much to the gratification of the three ministers arranging the services. The attendance has been about an even proportion of representatives from each denomination. The services opened on last Sabbath evening at the Baptist church, which was filled in every part. The sermon was by Rev. A. F. Reimer, of the Methodist Episcopal church. On Monday and Tuesday evenings the services were in the same church. Monday the sermon was by Rev. J. G. Taylor, of the Congregational church, and on Tuesday by Rev. Ira Baird, of the Baptist church. Monday evening the Boys' Brigade attended in uniform. Wednesday and Thursday evening meetings were held in the Methodist church. Rev. Mr. Taylor preached the former evening and Rev. Mr. Baird

WASHINGTON LETTER

(Special Correspondence.)

Early in the new year the senate probably will decide where it will place marble busts of two of the vice presidents, Roosevelt and Fairbanks. Mr. Roosevelt's career in the senate was extremely brief, and, although it ended about seven years ago, up to recent date no bust of him had been made.

Mr. Roosevelt selected James Frazier, a young artist of New York, highly recommended by Saint Gaudens as one of the most promising sculptors of the day, and Mr. Frazier has been at work for some time in carrying out his commission. It is said that this bust is near completion and will be delivered before March 4.

Busts of Vice Presidents.

Sixteen years ago the senate adopted a resolution giving continuing power to its committee on the library, of which Senator Wetmore of Rhode Island is chairman, to have busts made of vice presidents. This resolution merely authorized the placing of such busts in the senate wing of the capitol, and they may be put in any of the niches in the gallery of the senate chamber or in other parts of the senate wing. There is no restriction against the removal of busts that now occupy most important places within the chamber itself to make way for new ones. By the removal of one of these marble effigies of a president of the senate during the early days of the nation a place was made for the late Vice President Hobart within the senate chamber.

Mr. Fairbanks' bust is being made by Franklin Simmons, an American artist residing in Rome, who has executed many designs for congress and whose work stands in many places about the capitol and throughout Washington. It is likely that Mr. Fairbanks' bust will be placed in the vice president's room until the expiration of his term of office.

Statue of Naval Hero.

At a meeting of the commission charged with the erection of a statue of John Paul Jones in this city held at the war department recently it was decided to have the statue made by Charles H. Niehaus of New York. Congress appropriated $50,000 for this statue. The commission consists of Secretary Wright, Secretary Newberry, Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania and Representative McCall of Massachusetts.

It is as yet undecided whether the Jones statue shall be erected near the naval observatory in Massachusetts avenue, on New York avenue in front of the new Masonic temple or on the north side of Franklin park, midway between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets.

Mr. Niehaus was born in Cincinnati fifty-three years ago and began life as an apprentice to a marble cutter. He studied art in the McMicken School of Design and modeled busts of Disraeli, among others, in Germany, France and England from 1877 to 1881. He has won many medals and prizes since that time. His works ornament public buildings and parks in Cincinnati, Washington, Hartford, Muskegon, Mich.; Buffalo and Memphis. The pediment of the appellate courthouse in New York city was designed by him.

Religion and Politics Mixed.

The man who wrote in the heat of the campaign, "Behold the candidate and listen unto his lamentations," should hear Representative James A. Tawney of Minnesota recount the trials and tribulations he encountered in trying to retain his seat in congress.

"There was no end of roorbacks sprung on me," said Mr. Tawney, "but one of the funniest came along at the close of the campaign. One night I went home late from a political meeting dead tired out to find my wife waiting for me."

"What do you think they are saying about you now, Jim?" she asked me.

"Give it up," I replied.

"Well, our pastor and one of the leading members of our church were just here to ask me if there was any truth in the report that you were going to have your wife and daughter change their church for political reasons."

"If they have got to the point where they are mixing up my wife's religion and my politics," I replied, "there is no telling what will come next."

Naval Vessel Condemned.

The converted yacht Inca has been condemned for naval purposes and ordered sold. She is a wooden schooner of 120 tons displacement and was built by George Lawler & Son at Boston in 1898. At the outbreak of the Spanish war she was purchased by the government and converted into a cruiser with a light battery.

Gossip of the Capitol.

"I must still look pretty green," remarked Senator Cummins of Iowa to Senator Flint of California as they strolled arm in arm down the capitol corridor the other day. "I've been here several weeks now and am beginning to find my way around a little."

"It's plain, however, that I haven't got over that back country look. This morning as I came through the door a guide walked right up to me and said with an air that meant 'You're just the man I've been looking for.'"

"You can't see the capitol properly, sir, without a guide. Don't you want me to take you around?"

"I told him I would be glad to accept his offer if I only had the time, but I was in a hurry to get in the chamber because I wanted to introduce a couple of bills and wasn't just certain how it should be done."

SO-CALLED CONTINGENT DEBT

of Commissions

Boston, Jan. 7.—In his message to the legislature today Governor Draper says:

During the last year business conditions in the Commonwealth have not been good. Many people have been out of employment, and those who were employed have in many instances been obliged to work short time because of the limited demand for the articles produced in our large manufacturing establishments.

These conditions have obtained all over the United States, and in other nations as well.

At the present time there is a very marked improvement in business; many more people are being employed, and while there is nothing in the way of a business boom, conditions are distinctly better, and the outlook is brighter than it has been during the last year.

Financial Condition.

The net direct debt, so called, of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, on the 1st of December, 1908, was $17,628,372.

In this direct debt is included $2,420,836 of the armory loan, transferred during the past year from the so-called contingent debt. Without this armory loan the direct net debt would be $15,207,536, or an increase of about $950,000 in the last ten years.

During this time the so-called contingent debt of the State has increased very rapidly, being, ten years ago, $29,863,112, while at the present time it is $49,428,223, showing an increase of $19,565,111 in ten years.

Substantially this entire debt, about $40,000,000, has been incurred during the last twenty years, and it is being paid by the people of the metropolitan district.

I do not understand why this debt of the Commonwealth is referred to as a contingent debt. It is a direct obligation of the Commonwealth, but it differs from the net direct debt, so called, in this: that for the payment of the net direct debt all the people of the State are taxed, while this so-called contingent debt is to be paid back to the State by the people of the metropolitan district.

The Commonwealth, however, is directly responsible for its payment, and has issued its own direct obligations for the money obtained.

The so-called contingent debt is for the money which was borrowed for the metropolitan water works, the metropolitan sewers, and for the construction of metropolitan parks, etc.

I believe better and more correct names for these two classes of debt would be "general debt" and "metropolitan debt."

Of this metropolitan debt, $40,500,000 has been incurred for the water supply, and ought not to be a burden on the community getting its benefits, as the water rates should more than pay all the expenses, interest, maintenance and sinking funds.

The sewer debt is of course a necessary burden upon the community which needs the sewers for a proper system to aid in the preservation of health.

The money expended for the metropolitan parks may have been a wise expenditure, but it is a very heavy burden.

State Tax.

The State tax for the year 1908 was $5,500,000. This direct State tax was the largest for a great many years, and while it was made large to pay for necessary expenditures, I believe that appropriations should, for the coming year, be so made that a much smaller direct State tax should be required this year than last, and our best efforts should be used to bring about this result.

I conceive it my duty to urge on you at this time the importance of economy in all expenditures, making no appropriations where not absolutely needed, and exercising a most careful supervision of all expenses, so that our direct State tax, which bears heavily upon all the people, may be reduced as much as possible.

It goes without saying that where it is necessary to appropriate money for unavoidable enlargements or changes in our institutions for the care of the insane, sick, criminal and unfortunate, such appropriations should be made, and no public-spirited citizen, I am sure, will object to a proper tax for such a purpose.

But I do think that no appropriations which are not absolutely needed for the proper care of the people should be made in the present financial condition of the Commonwealth.

Taxation.

In the last few years different Governors have urged various methods of increasing the revenues of the State. Commissions and legislative committees have been appointed to bring in recommendations for new laws which should effect this result.

While these reports have been made by very able men, both on the commissions and legislative committees, the only recent recommendation on taxation of those made by them or by Governors, which has been enacted into law, has been the law relating to the taxation of direct inheritances.

The Legislature has shown, by its action in raising by a direct tax whatever money was needed in addition to our regular revenue for paying the running expenses of the State, that that method was satisfactory to it.

The direct State tax for the payment of the running expenses of the Commonwealth has one great virtue. In that it calls to the attention of the people of every town and city the amount of money appropriated by the Legislature for State expenditures.

Under these circumstances, and realizing the fact that many suggestions and recommendations that have been made by Governors for increasing the State's revenue have not been adopted by the Legislature, I have at this time no suggestions to make for changing the existing method of taxation.

Recess Committee.

Many able committees have been appointed in the past, to sit when the Legislature is not in session, to consider various matters and make recommendations to the Legislature for new laws.

In most cases, in recent years important recommendations made by these committees have not been enacted into law.

The committees have been made up of conscientious men, who have given much thought to the subjects which they were appointed to consider; their reports have not brought about many important changes in legislation.

We are one of a very few States in the Union who have annual elections and sessions of the Legislature, and the Legislature is in session for substantially six months out of every twelve.

Under these conditions, necessary changes in our laws may be considered and acted on without the appointment of recess committees, which are of necessity expensive, and, as we have annual elections and annual sessions of the Legislature, are unnecessary.

Education.

Massachusetts has always maintained a high reputation for the quality of education that has been furnished by her public and private educational institutions.

In the last year there was contributed by the people of the State, for all school purposes, $18,515,429.

During the same time, outside of the money that has been raised directly by the cities and towns of the State for education, there has been expended by the Commonwealth, directly, more than $11,500,000 for State aid to the normal schools, pay for superintendents in small towns, textile schools, Nautical Training School, teaching the deaf and blind industrial education, State fund to small towns, etc.

The great question that is interesting the people today, in the way of general education, seems to be that which is termed "industrial education."

There does not seem to be a general agreement as to just what this term means. Many people seem to think that "industrial education" consists of instruction in manual training, which can be given, to a certain extent, in the grammar and high schools of the State; but to my mind this is incorrect.

"Industrial education" means much more than incidental instruction in so-called manual training, and I do not believe that it can be properly furnished except in special schools, devoted to that and to no other purpose.

I do believe that our method of education in grammar and high schools can be shaped in such a way that pupils desiring an "industrial education" may begin in an industrial school better prepared than they now are, but I do not believe that the present organization of public schools can furnish "industrial education" to their pupils.

Our education now tends very much more to academic requirement than to industrial training; and, while opportunity should be furnished to the few pupils in our public schools who desire to prepare for college training, changes should be made in their teaching, so that great numbers of the scholars who wish industrial education should have an opportunity to study with that end in view, rather than be obliged to pursue, as at present, a course mainly academic.

I believe that separate industrial schools should be established, which should not take in scholars, boys or girls, at less than fourteen years of age. I am not prepared to state whether or not there should be an age limit in the other direction; but such schools should be so organized that if boys or girls desired to attend them at that age, they could take a practical course which might last for two or more years, so that when they left they would be prepared to enter, with some substantial training, into the industrial work of life.

Boys and girls from fourteen to seventeen or eighteen years of age are not at the present time furnished by public schools with adequate training in the direction of a life work, if it is to be connected with a trade. The pupils who go to high schools are obliged to take much more of an academic training than they would be, provided there were suitable industrial schools for them to attend during these years.

In every section of the Commonwealth one may see boys and girls between fourteen and seventeen, who are too young to work on the streets doing nothing, or getting an education for which many of them are not adapted and do not wish; and I believe that giving them an opportunity for "industrial education," one part of which should be learning how to work and actually working a certain number of hours each day, would be of great benefit to them.

I further think that, at the present time, our educational system is not being conducted harmoniously to produce the best results; and later on it would seem to me wise to have the various organizations which are employed in State education brought under one control, so that each department should be managed by a central body, working in harmony with each other's branch of education, so that effort need not be wasted, and that the children to be educated should not be experimented on by different departments having an entirely different conception of what such education should be.

It may not this year be feasible to bring about such a general reorganization, because the experimental starting of industrial schools undoubtedly means the fostering care of a special organization; but when we see the State spending large sums of money for all these different organizations not working harmoniously for a common result, the desirability of such a reorganization as I have suggested will I believe, be plain to all.

State Highways.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts early recognized the necessity and value of good roads, and started in 1864 to build them.

The appropriation in that year for this purpose was $300,000, and since that time, up to December 1 of the present year, about 770 miles of such highways have been constructed at a total cost of $6,400,000, this being an average yearly expenditure of nearly $432,000.

The law provides that 25 per cent. of the amount expended for these highways shall be collected by the State Treasurer from the counties, so that the total expense directly chargeable to the State has been about $5,000,000, and the average net amount expended annually by the State has been about $390,000.

The present law, passed in 1908, has provided for an annual expenditure of $500,000 for five years, so that the policy of the Commonwealth is well determined.

I think there is no substantial number of the citizens of the State who do not thoroughly believe in the construction of good roads by the State.

We have been extremely fortunate in having had a commission in charge of this work who have expended the money wisely and accomplished generally satisfactory results; and to-day the State highways of Massachusetts are certainly second to those of no State in the Union, and are probably better than those of any other State. They are serving and will serve the people of the Commonwealth well, and the wise policy started by the State should be continued.

At times special appropriations have been made for new roads in excess of the annual appropriations. It does not seem to me that it is a wise policy to pursue, and if there are special places where State highways are needed, they should be constructed out of the regular annual appropriation.

One reason which appeals to me for this conclusion is the fact that the annual expenditures for maintenance, to preserve the property which we already have, must be materially increased over what they have been in the past, and this expense for maintenance ought to be considered an annual expense, which must be raised by taxation and paid for in the year in which it is expended.

In 1908 the direct legislative appropriations for maintenance were $150,000. In addition, the net receipts for fees of the automobile department for one and one-half years, which amounted to about $145,000, were appropriated for this purpose, so that the commission were enabled to expend for maintenance during the year 1908 about $295,000.

Taking the appropriations which have been made for repairs from the beginning of the construction of the State highways, the average amount appropriated by the Legislature for maintenance has been considerably less than $100 per mile per year.

In the last four or five years a very important new element has had to be considered in the repair of the State roads. I refer to the great increase in the number of automobiles which are used by the citizens of the Commonwealth. I believe that their number will increase, and, while this may be a good thing in many directions, they certainly make it much harder to keep the roads in condition, and therefore the annual amount to be expended for keeping the roads good must be materially increased.

The Highway Commission estimates that it will require at least $300 per mile per year to maintain the State highways in proper repair; and you will therefore need to take this into consideration in your treatment of this question.

There can be no doubt of the wisdom of maintaining in good condition the splendid property which we have, rather than increasing our mileage rapidly by borrowing money for new construction, and allowing the roads we already have to run down because of insufficient expenditures.

The park roads in the State are a comparatively small amount in mileage, but, because of enormous automobile traffic over them, the expense for re-surfacing and repairs is many times per mile what it is on the State highways.

There is no better illustration of the great damage done to highways of this character by high-powered and swift-running automobiles than is shown by the great amount of money required to keep these park roads in repair. Their condition shows to every observer the destructive effect of very extensive use of automobiles.

It seems to me obvious that a change ought to be made in the registration fee for automobiles, and that a graded fee should be established, by means of which the people using machines, which destroy the roads would be compelled to pay to the Commonwealth a proper amount for repairs.

I therefore believe and urge that legislation should be enacted which would require the owners of high-powered, heavy and fast-running automobiles to pay a greater license fee than is charged to citizens owning lighter and less destructive motor vehicles. Such laws have been enacted in other States, and, in my opinion, are practical and comparatively easy of application.

I think, further, that the money raised from such registration fees should be used for the maintenance of State roads.

In building these State roads it has been the policy of our commission to build them so that they would connect with the main highways of other States. This policy should be continued, and I think we may safely assume that other New England States will pursue the same general policy in the construction of their highways, and this co-operation will eventually be of great benefit to the people of all the New England States.

Automobiles.

As I have previously stated, these vehicles have, in my opinion, come to stay, and will constantly increase in numbers.

I have already referred to changes that I think it would be wise to make in legislation having to do with increased receipts from the use of certain classes of machines.

I further believe that our laws should be so amended as to better regulate the conditions under which they are run. The object to be attained by such legislation, in my view, is to prevent reckless operation of such machines on the public highways. Speed limits may have their advantages, but they oftentimes work a hardship on careful operators.

The laws should be so framed that any reckless operation of a motor vehicle, at any speed, should be the test for fine or other punishment, as the case may be. The object to be attained is to frame laws which will prevent reckless and dangerous operation of such vehicles. Where any particular person is convicted, the penalty should be severe; and if glaring cases of recklessness are found, the guilty operator should be prohibited from further opportunity for such action.

I would further suggest that some law might be passed which would make it a criminal offense to use an automobile without the owner's permission.

Harbors and Public Lands.

I believe that the appropriations for improvements in our harbors in the recent past have not been made in a proper and systematic way.

Many so-called improvements have been made that were not necessary; others have been started with an inefficient appropriation to carry them out, so that contracts could not be made to the best advantage; and in some instances appropriations have been made that were wasteful.

I suggest for your consideration that it would be wiser to treat this matter as the construction of highways is treated; that a general appropriation, of an amount sufficient to cover all such work, be annually made by the Legislature; and that the money so appropriated should be expended on such projects as meet with the approval of the Harbor and Land Commission.

In this way the sum appropriated could be kept within reasonable limits; no superfluous expenditure would be made; and out of the approval of the responsible Board which has these matters in charge for the Commonwealth, and better results would be obtained for all the people.

In this connection it would be wise to pass a general law authorizing cities and towns, by a two-thirds vote, to appropriate money to perform work and assume the risk of land damages for harbor and water improvements of this kind. In the same general form as the special acts passed by the Legislature for Plymouth harbor, the Wellfleet act for the dikes and dunes, and the Falmouth act for Beacon Pond.

This would provide a good test of local public interest in proposed improvements; and would, if part of the cost were borne by the town, show the real interest of the community in such improvement.

There would undoubtedly be cases where the town could not afford to pay anything, while the improvement might be important. In other cases the town might be willing to pay a part, and the State could pay the rest, if it were really an improvement.

I would suggest that the annual appropriation by the State for such purposes should not be in excess of $75,000.

If any great work were to be undertaken for the benefit of the whole State it could of course be dealt with as a special rate matter.

One System of Bookkeeping.
An act was passed by the last session of the Legislature (chapter 307) which provided that, under the direction of the Auditor, a system of bookkeeping which should be substantially uniform should be established for all our institutions. This was to apply to all receipts and disbursements, and accounting for stores, supplies and materials.

It seems to me that this is a matter of the greatest importance, as it would make it easy for comparisons of one institution with another as to their receipts and expenditures for similar articles. Their results in carrying for the property in their control could be easily ascertained, and success or failure in management could be easily compared.

This would be most helpful to the managers of the institutions, and would be a great aid in the prevention of unnecessary and extravagant expenditures. It would enable the boards of control, and the responsible head of each institution, to find out quickly and accurately, any facts which would be of advantage to each of them to know.

I am informed by the Auditor that this matter is substantially well under way, and that it will be in practical operation, if not now, in the immediate future.

Militia.

The militia of the Commonwealth I believe to be in good condition. Their status has been very much changed by the passage of the national Congress, of the so-called Dick law, which has been accepted by Massachusetts, and they now constitute a part of the general military system of the national government.

The work done by the militia in the State during and after the great fire was excellent, and I congratulate them on the efficiency shown in the service they rendered.

Massachusetts Nautical Training School.

This school has been in the past conducted on the United States ship "Enterprize."

The school was established for the purpose of training young men to become efficient in all branches of work connected with the merchant marine, and in case of necessity, to have the basic training for service in the United States navy.

The Naval Bureau of Massachusetts, under the Adjutant General, is required to superintend the training of the naval militia of the Commonwealth which includes subjects covered by the Massachusetts Nautical Training School, and they also have a war vessel for their use.

The Nautical Training School has received from the government this year a much larger and better ship than the "Enterprize," the "Ranger," which would also be an admirable ship for the use of the Massachusetts Naval Militia.

I suggest for your consideration whether it is not perfectly practicable for both these organizations to use the same ship. This could be done by having the terms of the scholars in the Nautical Training School limited to nine months a year, and the naval militia could use the ship for part of three months in the year.

I am informed, as a matter of fact, that the naval militia, if they had the use of the ship for Saturday during May and June, and for the month of July, would not need it at other times.

Under these circumstances, the usual cruise that is taken by the Nautical Training School could begin on the first of August without interfering with the naval militia, and the whole matter could be put in charge of the Naval Bureau.

The subjects on which the Massachusetts Naval Militia need training are somewhat like those which are furnished to the students in the training school, so that the teachers and officers of the training school could fulfill a very important function in helping in the training of the naval militia. If this were done, it would not be necessary to maintain the special commission of the Massachusetts Nautical Training School, and the whole matter could be put in charge of the Naval Bureau.

This, in my judgment, would be practically as well for the students in the Nautical Training School, and an excellent thing for the naval militia.

The gentlemen who compose the Naval Bureau are well qualified to fulfill the responsible duties now performed by the commission controlling the Nautical Training School, and the necessary complication of having two warships for these two entirely similar purposes would be done away with, and considerable amount of money would be saved, and there would be no disadvantage to the Commonwealth.

I desire, to have it distinctly understood that in any statements here made I have nothing but praise for the commission which has conducted the Massachusetts Nautical Training School; but it seems to me that for the best interests of the Commonwealth it is unnecessary to have these two ships and two boards of administration.

There has always been a misunderstanding among the people in regard to what the Nautical Training School is, there having been a general impression that it was something in the way of a reformatory institution.

This is absolutely incorrect; it is simply what its name implies, a Nautical Training School which has done much good work, and has turned out men well trained to fill important positions in the mercantile marine service.

Old-Age Pensions.

I am informed by members of the commission who are investigating the question of old-age pensions that they will make a partial report this year, but that they will need another year to make the complete report required by the terms of the resolve under which they were appointed.

They further say that they will not need any further appropriation before their final report.

Under these circumstances, it would be wise to have their time extended for one year, so that we may have the benefit of their investigations shown in a full report. In this connection, however, I would suggest for your consideration whether, if any general old-age pension scheme were ever to be enacted, it would not be wise to have this a national proposition, rather than something to be done by an individual State. We are all citizens of one country, and if our State should take up this matter for consideration, and some States do nothing, and others adopt one scheme and still others a different one, it would produce a situation which, to my mind, would not be practical or wise.

Forestry.

Forest products have so increased in value in recent years that it behooves us as a Commonwealth to enact and adjust laws so that our forests or commercially valuable trees may be treated and conserved with economy and that lands at present in idleness shall be returned, through reforestation, to productivity. We must also enact sufficient laws to reasonably insure our people against dangers from forest fires and over-taxation of growing timber.

I cordially recommend to you a consideration of the recommendations of the New England forestry officials, resulting from the recent meeting of New England Governors.

Boards and Commissions.

The business of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts is largely carried on by boards and commissions, paid and unpaid.

Unpaid Boards.
There are twenty-three unpaid boards. Several of these are local, like the trustees of the textile schools in Lowell, Fall River and New Bedford; several of them are not especially active, but, on the other hand, others have the superintendence of much of the important business of the State, both as to results accomplished and money expended. The Board of Health, Board of Education, Prison Commissioners, Board of Insanity, Board of Charity, Board of Agriculture, Trustees of State Library, the Commission for the Blind, have matters of the greatest importance to attend to, and expend very large sums of money.

These boards are made up of public spirited men and women, who have given their services to the Commonwealth. They are well organized as a working force, and they employ able and high-priced agents to represent them. They serve practically as boards of directors of the great institutions which they manage, and they have given good and most valuable service to the Commonwealth.

The organization is an economical one, and the results attained, on the whole, are excellent. It is not to be denied, however, that results they cannot be criticised, but the system of unpaid boards of public spirited men and women, with good salaries and executive officers hired by them and under their control, has done good work for the Commonwealth, and has done it economically.

Paid Boards.

There are six paid boards, so called, in the Commonwealth.

Board of Public Safety.
Board of Registration in Dentistry.
Board of Registration in Pharmacy.
Board of Registration in Veterinary Medicine.
Board of Registration in Medicine.

These last four boards are managing matters of very similar import, with each one maintaining a separate organization of secretaries, agents, etc.

The men on these boards have done good work, and are not paid high salaries, but, because of their being separate boards, it is necessary for each to have a separate organization, and I believe it would be perfectly feasible to have one board and one organization in place of the four boards and four organizations which now exist to the business of the Commonwealth.

I do not mean to imply that all the expenses of the organizations could be done away with; it would be necessary to have more clerks than are employed by any one board, but traveling expenses, which are a very substantial item, would be very much reduced. A single representative of each of the departments could be on a general board, representing the particular subject with which he was familiar; and as a consequence I believe the business of the State would be quite as well done as now, with one board instead of four, with very much less complication and a considerable saving in money.

Commissions and Boards Paid by Cities, Towns and Various Interests.

There are fourteen commissions and boards which are paid by the Commonwealth, the expenses being then charged either to the interests which they over-look, or to the metropolitan district, or to various cities and towns for which their work is done.

Among the most important of these commissions are:

have informed me that they are certain that they shall have the main part of their work completed by July 1, 1910. They therefore suggested to me that an act should be passed providing for the care and control, by some public body, of the Boston waterfront when completed. Further, that in that act a definite date should be established when their commission shall be terminated, by which time the construction work remaining to be done will cost about $1,000,000.

They do not think that by July 1, 1910, all the details of the work will be finished, but they do believe that it will be substantially done at that time, and they hope and expect that the main parts of the work will be completed considerably earlier than that.

I therefore recommend legislation which shall provide that the Metropolitan Park Commission shall take over the construction work of the Charles River Basin Commission not later than July 1, 1910, and that the act shall also provide that the same commission shall have charge of the entire work when completed.

I believe, as suggested by the members of the Charles River Basin Commission, that they will be enabled to turn their work over to some proper authority at an earlier date than July 1, 1910, and I therefore suggest that the act shall be so framed that this transfer can be made at any earlier date.

Another very important matter which this commission has called to my attention is the appropriation of the expense incurred in the construction of the Metropolitan Park Commission, and the towns of the metropolitan district, as provided in the Charles River Basin act.

They have been advised by the Attorney General that new legislation is necessary to enable this appropriation to be made, and I suggest that legislation be enacted at this session of the Legislature, providing that these cities and towns be given in the year 1909, the pay to the State for the Charles River Basin Commission by the State for their benefit.

The Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board report that they consider it necessary to have a new water-pumping station for the high-pressure service. They estimate this will cost $125,000.

This new pump and pump are needed not because of increased population, but because the present pump, consumption of water in the city has increased to a point beyond the original estimate.

When the works were constructed it was thought that eventually the use of water might be increased to the extent of 100 per cent per capita. The daily per capita consumption is now between 100 and 125 gallons in the metropolitan district, and in Boston the daily average per capita consumption for the last year was 125 gallons. This suggests that there must be a great and increasing waste of water, the result of which, if not checked, will be enormous. It is not to be checked, an enormous increase in the consumption of water in the city, and the city of Boston, for the last year, has passed an act authorizing the water and sewerage services to be increased to 150 per cent of the present consumption, on or before Dec. 31, 1907.

All the municipalities within the metropolitan district, which are supplied with water, are supplied with the requirements of this act except the city of Boston, which consumes about 75 per cent of the total quantity supplied. The water commissioner of Boston states that practically nothing has been done under the provisions of the act of 1907, in the way of supplying meters, because the department has been so busy with the requirements of the act of 1907, in regard to meters, should be completed.

It is probable that if these two matters were properly attended to, the consumption of water would be decreased per capita from 125 to 100 per cent, and if that were done, the city of Boston, which is now paying for new water mains and pumping engines would not be immediately necessary.

This shows the great importance to the city of Boston, and to the metropolitan district in having a compulsory and rigid inspection of the use of water, and an enforcement of the legislative act of 1907 in regard to water meters in the city of Boston, and I trust that matter will be treated in such a way as to bring about an immediate and great improvement in this respect.

While the metropolitan district and the city of Boston have a magnificent and generous water supply, that should not be an excuse for extravagance and waste, and must greatly increase the cost of water to the taxpayers.

This is a matter that concerns all the people, and should have immediate attention.

Commissions, Heads of Departments, Etc.

In addition to the boards, commissions, etc., which have previously been referred to by me, there are seventeen commissions and heads of departments which are paid directly by the Commonwealth, and of which they are in charge of very important interests, and include:

Massachusetts Highway Commission, Insurance Commission, Fisheries and Game Commissioners, Tax Commissioner (also Commissioner of Corporations), Commissioner of Industrial Education, Harbor and Land Commission, Civil Service Commissioners, Attorney General, Superintendent for the Suppression of Gypsy and Brown Tail Moths, Bureau of Statistics of Labor, Commissioner of State Lands and Pensions, Commissioner of Weights and Measures, besides several others of lesser importance.

The matters under control of these various agencies are so varied, and so important, and while it may be wise from time to time to make certain changes, I have nothing to suggest at the present time, except the suggestion that the Legislature should enable one person to serve as Superintendent for the Gypsy and Brown Tail Moth Suppression and State Forester.

I am informed by the Commissioner of State Lands and Pensions that the present law provides for the payment of State and military aid to the first day of January, 1910.

New legislation should be enacted, to authorize the continuation of these payments.

Meeting of New England Governors.

The Governors of the New England States, together with delegates appointed by them, met in Boston recently for consultation and discussion of certain subjects in connection with which they felt great benefit would accrue to the people if uniform laws were passed by each of the States.

Among the delegates present were the State foresters, highway commissioners and fish and game commissioners.

As a result of this meeting, various resolutions were passed which, if adopted by the Legislatures of the respective States, would improve conditions in New England.

These resolutions had reference to connecting lines of highways and regulation of traffic thereon, forest management and regulation, and changes in laws relating to lobsters and polltucks.

I commend these various resolutions, which were the result of unanimous agreement to your favorable consideration. If the changes recommended in the laws are good, as I believe they are, their adoption by all of the New England States would certainly result beneficially.

Serators and Representatives.—You have been selected to serve the Commonwealth in an election held recently, and your votes were cast at a previous time in our history.

Conditions are such in many of our municipalities, that the Commonwealth, and the people, need economical and conscientious exercise of the best abilities that are possessed by our public servants that are required.

I feel sure that you will fully and responsibly discharge the duties which rest upon you, and that you will do your duty conscientiously and well.

You are familiar with the great record which has been made in the past by your predecessors, and I urge you to pass no laws, to please others, which have not the approval of your own conscience and judgment.

If you do this, the results accomplished will raise still higher the standard of Massachusetts legislation.

ARLINGTON LOCAL NEWS.

At the morning service at the First Parish (Unitarian) church, on Sunday, Jan. 10th, and also in the Sunday school at noon, collections will be taken in aid of the sufferers from the earthquake on the island of Sicily. Rev. Frederic Gilk, the minister, has sent out a special appeal through the medium of a post-card and his parishioners we know can be depended upon to give generously.

On January 11th, the Menotomy Canoe Club will hold a social party and dance at the club house on the shore of Spy Pond, foot of Avon place. The affair will be in charge of Mr. C. E. Ross and Mr. Bain. All are welcome to the affair. The dance held by the club at Arlington Auditorium was a grand success. The officers of the affair were B. J. Yirovee, F. W. Haven, John W. Bain, John A. Roden, H. A. Ericson, E. B. Wells and C. E. Ross.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. L. King, of Somerville, have this week taken up their residence in the new home just finished for their occupancy on Pleasant street, two doors above Gray street. The house is much roomier than the exterior would perhaps lead one to expect, and it is an attractive home in all respects. Mr. King, so we are informed, is the paying tenant of the Cambridge Gas Light Co.

At the annual meeting of James Ray Cole lodge, Knights of Pythias, Wednesday evening, in Odd Fellows' hall, the following were elected: Boyden Strang, C. C.; Harvey Bacon, V. C.; Dr. LeVern Holmes, prelate; Maj. Bacon, M. W.; William White, M. A.; Arthur B. Moulton, K. of H. and S. E. Andrews, M. of F.; George H. Rice, M. of E.; R. W. Saunders, J. G., and John W. Bain, O. G.

Division No. 23, A. O. U. held its election Wednesday evening. James P. Daley was elected president. The other officers are: Daniel Barry, vice-president; Patrick Quinn, treasurer; Daniel W. Granman, rec. sec.; Jeremiah Sexton, fin. sec.; John W. Harrington, James P. Daley, Daniel W. Granman, John Kelley, Patrick Hurley, Jeremiah Sexton, Patrick Quinn, directors; Patrick Gurney, sergeant-at-arms; Patrick Geary, sentinel. The officers will be installed Jan. 19th.

The death of Mr. Franklin M. Howe at his home in Kansas City, Mo., has called to mind of many old friends resident of Arlington, events of their boyhood, when Mr. Howe was a resident among them. He was a member of the class of 1868 of Arlington High school, and married Mary Lizzie Wyman, daughter of Mr. James Wyman, an old resident of this town, now a long time deceased. Mr. Howe was a member of the firm of Vanbrunt & Howe, architects, and rose to considerable eminence in his profession. This firm was the one that designed the Soldiers' Monument at Arlington, erected at the head of Broadway and Massachusetts avenue.

It has been very happily proposed to repeat the delightful comedy of "The Sisterhood of Bridget," for the benefit of the sufferers from the earthquake in Sicily. Several of the churches of the town are to be represented by committees of ladies who will, in a sense, act as patrons of the presentation, to promote the sale of the tickets and make the financial receipts as large as possible. All the earnings are to be added to the town relief fund of which Mr. Easton is the treasurer. The performance is to be given in Town Hall, Friday evening of next week, Jan. 15th. Tickets 50 cents. They can be had of Miss E. W. Hodgdon, Miss Watson, Mrs. Frederick S. Mead, Miss A. W. Homer, Mrs. Eben Thacher, Mrs. Frederick B. Thompson, also at Whittemore's. The performance will be followed by a dance.

At a meeting Sunday evening last, the following schedule and regulations were drawn up for the Sunday School Hockey League. The eligibility rule requires that all the players must have been under sixteen years of age on January 1, 1909. The schedule is as follows: Tuesday, Jan. 12, Cong'l vs Unitarian. Thursday, Jan. 14, Baptist vs Congregational. Saturday, Jan. 16, Unitarian vs Universalist and Episcopal vs Baptist. Tuesday, Jan. 19, Unitarian vs Episcopal. Thursday, Jan. 21, Cong'l vs Universalist. Saturday, Jan. 23, Episcopal vs Congregational and Baptist vs Universalists. Tuesday, Jan. 26, Episcopal vs Universalist and Baptist vs Unitarian.

It was thought best to arrange two games on one day wherever possible. At each game the captains of the opposing teams will each send a post card, provided for the purpose, to the secretary of the league, H. F. Viets, giving the names of the players on their team and the score of the game, and any protests that may arise. All games are scheduled for Spy pond. In case of inability to play a game on a scheduled day the two captains will jointly arrange a date agreeable to both.

An Arlington friend received a letter from Miss Clara Robbins on Monday of this week, written at Naples, Dec. 21st. Miss Robbins stated that the party, including herself and sisters together with Mr. Winfield Robbins, had made all their plans for their departure to spend Christmas in Sicily, without doubt, they were in that island of dire distress when the earthquakes and tidal waves occurred. It is thought, however, that they are safe, as they intended to go to Palermo and not Messina. Miss Elizabeth Newton, librarian of Robbins Library, received a post-card on Monday mailed at Naples on Dec. 17th, the day the J. F. Trowbridge was to arrive at Naples. Mrs. Trowbridge stated in the card that they had been informed that the Robbins party was still in Naples at that date. The disturbances on the ocean the past month have been so severe that steamers have been greatly delayed, many of them a week beyond their customary time of making port. This has retarded the receipt of mails from the other side very materially.

The annual New Year's party of the First Parish (Unitarian) church and Sunday school occurred on Friday of last week. Owing to sickness among the children, the attendance in the afternoon was somewhat smaller than in previous years. The little ones, however, were given a royal good time by their teachers, the latter part of the afternoon's entertainment being furnished by children of the Dorothy Dix Hall Association. Members of the parish and of the main school joined the company for supper, served at six o'clock in the ladies' parlor. It was the usual appetizing bill of fare of cold turkey, ham, scalloped oysters, rolls, cake and ice cream, that was partaken of by a company that filled every seat provided. At its conclusion a social hour followed, after which the Dorothy Dix children repeated the program of music and recitations presented in the afternoon, with slight alterations. The entertainment was secured by the Junior Alliance, members of which also acted as waitresses at the supper. The committee providing the supper was as follows: Miss Mary Shattuck (chairman), Mesdames Wm. H. Tuttle, Bert Houghton, George A. Smith, H. H. Homer, Alton F. Tupper, Peter Schwamb, David Buttrick, Miss Ellen W. Hodgdon, Miss Florence Harris.

The Bradshaw Missionary Association held its annual meeting and election of officers Monday afternoon, at three o'clock, in the ladies' parlor of the Orthodox Cong'l church. The meeting was presided over by its president, Mrs. F. B. Thompson. Reports for the several departments were read and approved. The treasurer's report showed a balance on hand of $296.67. Mrs. A. C. Cobb, who has been the recording secretary for the past year, declined a reelection. The following appropriations were voted upon at this time: $120 to the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions; $60 to the W. B. of Home Missions; $15 for the Penn school; $10 to Redfield College at South Dakota; $10 Chinese Mission work in Boston; $20 to the Bays Industrial school at Albuquerque, N. M.; $10 to Montgomery Industrial school; $10 Willard Y. Settlement; $5 to assist the Savers Lend-a-Hand in the worthy object in which they are interested. At the conclusion of the business, Mrs. Arthur Wood and Mrs. C. E. Warren served from an attractively arranged table, containing dainty refreshments, assisted by Misses Gertrude and Emily Roden, Dorothea Rowse and Alice Bushnell. The following is the list of officers elected:—

President.—Mrs. F. B. Thompson.
1st vice-pres.—Mrs. C. E. Warren.
2nd vice-pres.—Mrs. Myron Taylor.
3d vice-pres.—Miss Harriet Fiske.
Rec. sec'y.—Mrs. W. K. Cook.
Cor. sec'y.—Miss Ellen Barrage.
Treas.—Mrs. H. D. Dodge.
Auditor.—Mrs. E. O. Grover.

Hockey Games on Spy.

Spy pond was alive with skaters on Saturday afternoon, January 24, and there were several events in hockey contests. Hillside A. A., of Somerville, and Cambridge hockey team tried conclusions in an excellent game, the former team winning in a score of 4 to 2.

Last Saturday Arlington High defeated Wellesley High, 2 to 1, at ice hockey on the Hunnewell playground rink, at Wellesley. The Arlington forwards played a fast game, particularly Chick and Hill. The summary:—

ARLINGTON H. S.	WELLESLEY H. S.
Murray f	Webster f
Chick f	Rankin f
Hill f	Smart f
Seannell f	Whitney f
Buckley cp	Winton cp
McMullen g	Ferris g
Higgins g	Lane g

Score, Arlington H. S. 2, Wellesley H. S. 1. Goals made by Chick, Hill, Webster. Referee, Sibley. Timer, Pazzetti. Time 20m.

The newly formed Arlington hockey team was beaten by the Crescents, another local team, on Spy pond last Saturday afternoon, 5 to 1. In one of the fastest games played here in some time. From start to finish the game was played with a rush, and some clever pass work was done. At the close of the first period the score stood 3 to 3, but by hard playing in the second period the Crescents scored two goals to Arlington's one. The game was the first of a series between the two teams. For the Crescents Hicks, Hornblower and Duffy were the stars, and for Arlington Clifford, Cassidy and Granman excelled. The summary:—

CRESCENTS	ARLINGTON H. C.
Hicks f	Clifford f
Hornblower f	Cassidy f
Duffy f	Granman f
Dineen cp	Bullard cp
Smith cp	O'Brien cp
Wood g	G. Gray g

Arlington Boat Club hockey team opened its season Saturday afternoon, the team from the Medford Boat Club playing it for tie, 1 to 1. The game was the first of a series that will be played among the clubs of this district and it was witnessed by a large crowd. An extra period was played to try and break the tie, but to no avail; and then it was decided to call the game off and arrange for another soon to settle the tie. In the first period neither team scored, but early in the second half Smith of the Medford team succeeded in getting a fluky shot by the Arlington goal tenders, and it was not until the close of the period that Lunt of Arlington made a long shot and succeeded in getting the puck through. For the Arlington team Puffer, Peirce and Lunt were the stars, and for Medford, Smith, Hyde and Peckham played best. The summary:—

ARLINGTON B. C.	MEDFORD B. C.
P. Viets f	Walking f

Mrs. Blaikie's Dancing Party.

The thirty children in Miss Blaikie's afternoon class gave a fancy dress party in Wellington Hall, on New Year's day. Owing to illness, some of the members were unable to be present, but twenty-five who participated presented a most charming sight as they marched about the hall and participated in the regular dances and the several German figures introduced. Mrs. M. Ernest Moore and Mrs. H. L. Haines were the matrons. The former was in green chiffon broadcloth and black plumed hat, while the latter wore a black reception toilette and black hat. We shall not attempt to give the names of the children participating, but will enumerate some of the costumes, so an idea can be obtained of the attractiveness of the party.

There was a red cross nurse; Columbia; two lovely butterfly costumes, one in yellow and black, the other in blue and yellow; Folly, dressed in white and pink with tinsel and bells; another of white satin trimmed with red and blue ribbons and bells; a Mexican boy, a Jockey, a Spanish girl, Oxeyed Daisy, Poppy; two Spanish cavaliers in red satin suits and red plumed hats; one of the two Princes in the Tower, in black velvet, and a white satin gentleman's court costume. Winter was impersonated by one of the dearest little ones in white satin, silver fringe and swansdown; there was a gypsy; a monkey, impersonated by one of the masters, who caused no little amusement for the juvenile spectators; Night, Little Bo Peep, Kate Greenaway, Daybreak pink, a fancy white and blue satin costume, trimmed with swansdown. At intermission ice cream and cake were served, and altogether it was a most happy concert for celebrating the first day of the new year.

Clover Club Receives.

Thursday evening the Clover Lend-a-Hand invited their friends to join with them in an informal at home, which was a very happy New Year party and was at the same time a polite invitation for all so kindly intended to assist the benevolent fund of the club. Mrs. James A. Bailey, Jr., kindly loaned her residence at 114 Pleasant street for the occasion, and as it is peculiarly well adapted for social functions, made a handsome setting for what proved one of the most attractive society events held in Arlington this season. After the informal reception, during which the president of the club, Mrs. A. Murray Walcott, and Mrs. Bailey received, the former in a full evening toilette of pink satin, and the latter in white satin, there was a musical programme given by members of the Musical Club.

That popular and delightful number from Schumann's Flying Dutchman, was given by the quartette, Mesdames Reid, Scully, Blake and Hornblower. Mrs. E. Nelson Blake gave a group of songs, greatly to the pleasure of all present, and Miss Walcott, of Belmont, rendered piano selections, showing exceptional accomplishments by her delightful playing. Miss Katharine Yerrinton was the accompanist of the several vocal numbers. Mrs. John F. Scully sang Schumann's "Weidmunn" (in German) very beautifully, and the piano score was fine. Refreshments served in the dining room was the concluding feature of the evening. The table made a beautiful picture for the eye to rest on, set with elegant china and silver, amid lovely decorations. Mrs. Chas. A. Dennett had charge of the service in the dining room. Those assisting her were Mrs. William G. Rice, Mrs. Walter Spomer, Mrs. F. N. Bott, Mrs. Henry Seibold, Misses Alice Homer and Alice Holway, Mrs. A. J. Wellington. The pointers were Mrs. Wm. F. Homer, Miss Watson, Mrs. Ralph N. South, Mrs. Wm. Marsden. All these ladies were beautifully gowned, and the assemblage was in all respects quite notable for the taste and tastefulness of its attire. Miss Grace Gage took charge of the "refectory."

Arlington Woman's Club.

The Woman's Club met on Thursday afternoon in Associates Hall, and was called to order at three o'clock by its president, Mrs. C. H. Dennett. After the reading of the secretary's report, the president introduced Mrs. Florence Ives Atwood, of Dorchester, as the soloist of the afternoon. Mrs. Atwood gave a group of three songs, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Charles Devereaux. Mrs. Dennett announced that Mr. Charles H. Morse, advertised as the speaker of the afternoon, was unable to be present, but had sent as his representative Miss Florence Marshall, who is associated with Mr. Morse in the Industrial work of the state.

Miss Marshall is especially interested in Industrial Education of girls and she confined her talk to that subject. In opening, Miss Marshall said that to her mind there was no more burning topic today than the one she is so earnestly working for. This problem has come through the changed conditions in our homes, brought about by the elimination of the many industries that were once a part of the home training, but which are now being done by skilled labor. She touched upon what the schools are doing along these lines of training, but spoke of their limitations.

Miss Marshall is especially interested in the young girls who leave school at the age of twelve and fourteen and are obliged to earn their living without any preparation. For such she has been instrumental in the establishing of a Trade School in Boston, and her recital of what the school has already done for the one hundred and sixty girls who can be accommodated, was most interesting and awakened an enthusiasm among her audience in this splendid line of work. At the conclusion of Miss Marshall's talk, Mrs. Dennett voiced the pleasure of the club in a happily worded sentence and in a graceful manner extended to the club best wishes for the new year just entered upon.

Mrs. Charles Swan will be at home on Tuesdays and Fridays only, to dispose of the guest tickets for Gentlemen's Night. After Jan. 24th, any club member may obtain extra tickets.

It was Miss Myrtle A. Greene, one of Arlington's young singers, who was the soloist at the last meeting in December.

G. A. R. Night at A. B. C.

"Well, those old fellows do just beat the band." Now what was intended to be conveyed by this not infrequent expression coming to us Tuesday evening at Arlington Boat Club, we shall not analyze. The "band" was there; and, certainly a jollier crowd than their rivals never assembled; rarely has more fun "rolled the hours along," than at the club "smoker" of Jan. 5. A large portion of the membership of Francis Gould Post 36, G. A. R., came to the o'clock marching in a body, about eight o'clock, and somewhat later Secretary of State, William M. Olin, and a portion of his G. A. R. comrades, generally known as "Olin's Gang," put in an appearance. Prior to their arrival, "Post 36 Orchestra" gave instrumental numbers composed of old-time melodies, but with the advent of the "star" performers, the members mingled with the "Gang" and added volume to the choruses.

The control of affairs was promptly turned over to Sec'y Olin, and he proved his title to "dictator." The opening number was "Camp Fire Song" by John L. Parker, to whom comrade Olin paid a graceful compliment. Then followed a group of songs, after which Past-Dept. Commander John E. Gilman told an incident of the battle of Gettysburg, in which he lost his right arm and followed with a solo of his own composing,—"My Good Right Arm." Other songs followed by way of prelude to Col. Hapgood's (in charge of the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea) story about Chancellorsville, where he was hit by a bullet that did not harm his body, because it imbedded itself in a testament carried in his breast pocket. Testament and bullet were shown. Junior-vice-Dept. Commander J. Willard Brown, who was an officer in the signal corps, described an engagement and illustrated by means of a flag how information was conveyed by means of signals. Songs were interspersed between these stories, many of them very funny, and a one point the A. B. C. boys gathered about the piano and gave a strong rendering of the familiar "A. B. C. chorus," ending with the Boat Club cheer. From this brief outline will be seen that there must have been a lot of fun; and yet there was an element of pathos in the stories which gave such vivid pictures of what it meant to be a soldier in the war for the preservation of the Union. Refreshments were served by the club and every method employed to show appreciation on the part of the members.

A. B. C. Notes.

In the table of team standings given out on Saturday, the home team in the Boston Pin League ranks sixth, with 16 games won and 16 games lost. Webb is the only member of the team in the list of high averages, his figure being 99, as compared with 106, the highest in this list.

There are but six clubs in the Gilt Edge League, and in this bunch A. B. C. ranked No. 4 in the schedule made up last Saturday, the record being 8 won and 8 lost. In averages J. P. Puffer has 172, Brooks 170, Houghton 168, Ashworth 164, R. E. Puffer 160, Homer 154, J. P. Puffer has a three string total of 583, leading every other player in the league.

As announced last week, Hon. Frank Plimley, member of Congress from Vermont, will be the speaker at a "Smoker," Tuesday evening, January 12.

The special New Year's bowling tournament rolled last Saturday, brought a large crowd to the alleys. The first prize in the Bottle Pin contest, a suit case, was won by W. L. White; consolation by O. W. Whittemore. The first Boston Pin prize, (an inkwell and watch attached) was won by W. F. Underwood; consolation by G. M. Fowler. A fine oyster stew was served during the evening.

Menotomy Club Dance.

One of the prettiest parties ever held in the Auditorium was that of last week, under the auspices of the Menotomy Canoe club of Arlington, whose club house is on the shore of Spy Pond. The affair was a success in every way. It was the second dance under the auspices of the club, and the old year was danced out and the new year in by a large number. The party was made up of residents of Cambridge, Malden, Arlington, Lexington, Somerville, Belmont and Boston. A pleasant moonlight night, with the air only fairly cool, were elements favoring the entertainment planned by officers of Old Belfry Club as a compliment to Post 119, G. A. R., and "Associates," for last Saturday evening. The consequence was as nearly a full attendance of members of the Post and enough of the club members to fill the auditorium. Comrades were given seats of honor in front, and were the first to be served with the fragrant weed the majority love to burn, and in every way possible were shown they were honored guests. President Charles B. Davis spoke a few words of cordial greeting in announcing the programme, which was made up of two series of humorous stories by Charles C. Pierce of Brookline, and vocal selections by the Nevins Male Quartette, in which Mr. Arthur F. Tucker is second tenor. His associates are E. E. Bullock, F. A. Varney, G. E. McGowan, and the combination is a strong and well balanced quartette, in fine practice.

BOSTON ELEVATED

To Our Patrons:—

The Washington Street Tunnel has now been in service for more than a month, and has proved very successful. The congestion at Park Street and Scollay Square has been relieved. Through passengers are carried more quickly and comfortably. The route of the Elevated trains is more convenient for a large majority of its patrons in respect to their business, their shopping and their places of entertainment. When the connection required by law, between the Subway and the Tunnel at Haymarket Square has been completed by the Transit Commission and used as a transfer station, the conditions at the North Station will be very much improved. When the East Cambridge Elevated tracks are built the conditions will be still further improved.

Knowing, however, that the withdrawal of the trains, as required by law, from the Tremont Street Subway, would involve changes which would undoubtedly cause inconveniences, the officials of the Company have watched the results carefully, to see how such inconveniences might best be remedied.

The congestion of the surface cars at the North Station proved very serious. This has been largely relieved by a new switch, turning a considerable number of the cars on to Haverhill Street.

The through car service in the Subway has been increased, and will be still further increased, if necessary.

The removal of the Elevated service to the South Station via Pleasant Street has caused inconvenience. This situation will be met, first, by the extension of the Charles Street line to Dewey Square and second, by transfer at Boylston Street Subway Station, from and to cars entering and leaving the Subway at the Public Garden, to and from surface cars, at the corner of Boylston and Tremont streets, reaching Dewey Square via Boylston, Washington and Summer streets. Conductors will issue transfers, on payment of fare, on and after January 13, 1909.

ARE YOU LISTED?

If not, begin the New Year right by seeing that your name is in the great social and business index—the Telephone Directory.

The forthcoming edition is now being made up for publication.

A listing therein is so valuable to the business man that no argument is needed to demonstrate it. An unlisted business man is like a town unrecorded on a map.

If your firm contemplates a change from its present telephone service that may necessitate a change in its telephone number, give your order without delay.

A residence telephone helps the busy housewife with her day's work, and in addition, is a social comfort.

For details as to rates and classes of service CALL At 119 MILK STREET, BOSTON, or telephone the Boston Division Contract Agent, "Fort Hill 7600" (free of charge).
